DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-13, drawn to a method of monitoring cellular activity, classified in class 435, subclass 29, for example.
- II. Claims 14-25 and 29, drawn to a system for monitoring cellular activity, classified in class 435, subclass 287.1, for example.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I (method) and II (apparatus) are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another and materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the method of Invention I would not necessarily have to be practiced with the particular apparatus of Invention II, but could be practiced with another apparatus. In addition, the apparatus of Invention II could be used in another, materially different process, such as a method of determining the amount of a particular analyte or microorganism (i.e., in a sample treated with excitable markers that bind to the analyte or microorganism of interest) by quantitatively determining the fluorescence of the sample when excited by the laser.

The inventions above are independent and distinct, each from the other. They have acquired a separate status in the art as a separate subject for inventive effect and require independent searches (as indicated by the different classification). The search for each of the above inventions is not co-extensive particularly with regard to the literature search. Further, a reference which would anticipate the invention of one group would not necessarily anticipate or even make obvious another group. Finally, the consideration for patentability is different in each case. Thus, it would be an undue burden to examine all of the above inventions in one application.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the response to this requirement, to be complete, must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed.
